Now here's an interesting fact: according to Statistics Canada the job of truck driver is the most frequently cited occupation of Canadian men. In fact there are over 227,000 Canadian truck drivers – making it one of the top occupations in the country. It’s these truck drivers who keep consumer and industrial goods moving across Canada and to and from the US. Unfortunately, things can go wrong for truck operators – and the cargo they’re carrying can get damaged or lost.

Whether the damage is caused by a collision, a fire, a load being accidentally dumped onto a roadway, or even being run over while waiting to be loaded, the related costs can be incredibly expensive. It’s not just the cost of fixing or replacing the vehicle, you’ll face. It may well be the additional costs of replacing the goods in transit, compensating the customer and supplier or paying for the clear up and associated costs of pollution and debris removal. Never mind any legal expenses. These costs can be crippling to any business. That’s why at Axis Insurance Group we offer comprehensive Motor Truck Cargo Insurance.

Any goods which are being shipped are subject to a Bill of Lading. The bill is designed to protect the carrier, rather than the owner of the cargo and it stipulates very clearly the maximum amounts for which the carrier is responsible. These limits are very low if the goods are shipped by truck – typically the default on a standard bill of lading limits liability for the carrier to $2/lb. So if a Rolex watch (worth about $20,000) is lost in transit the carrier would only have to pay around $5 as compensation – a long way from its true value, because it is so lightweight. However, as part of their risk management strategies, more and more companies want truckers to insure their goods while they are in transit as it allows them to transfer the risk to the cargo carrier. Therefore the onus then falls on the transport company to have the right insurance in place.

Not all Motor Truck Cargo policies are the same. At Axis Insurance Group we have many clients in the trucking industry so take a no-nonsense approach to our recommendations. We typically use broad all-risk legal liability coverage which has been specifically designed to cover the risks faced by a trucking company hauling goods. Here are a couple of examples of what that means in practice: we won’t recommend policies that exclude liability for a load if the power unit is detached from the trailer and the trailer is left unattended or where loads are not insured overnight unless inside a secure yard. In a nutshell, Axis Insurance Group will only propose coverage for our clients that will actually cover all the reasonable legal liabilities that a trucking company would expect to have covered, not just some of their operations. Our approach is firmly rooted in the real world – meaning you’re covered for the risks you’re actually likely to face in the regular course of your business.

By choosing a cost-effective policy from Axis Insurance Group you’ll be able to rest safe in the knowledge that the cargo you’re carrying will be covered in case something happens to it while it’s in your care. Axis Insurance Group can create stand-alone Motor Truck Cargo Insurance policies for your business or include it in a wider cargo and vehicle insurance portfolio. We can provide coverage for almost any type of cargo – from logging and drilling equipment, livestock, mobile homes to other vehicles being transported and certain types of dangerous goods. As you would expect, there are certain exclusions in a Motor Truck Cargo policy, which we would explain to you in detail to help you get the very best coverage.
Whatever your size of operation, your truck type(s) or the cargo you carry – Axis Insurance can help. You can count on Axis to give you the advice and protection to safeguard your cargo wherever you are.
